Audio

www.prosoundweb.com

Articles, forums, news. The sound reinforcement section has a lot of good resources and articles. The forums are pretty good, but if you want to participate make sure you post in the right place. There are a lot of professionals at every level here.

Graphics

www.motionographer.com/

This site is THE site to go to and see the latest motion graphic work done by people all over the world. On the left-hand side there is a list of different studios that create all types of different content - from commercials to movie titles. If it moves on TV or FILM -this site has it or the link to who did it. (Site is Free)

www.creativecow.net

Forums, posts, tutorials, basically an editor/motion graphics dream of a resource that allows people to buy an application and ask questions. Great tutorial section of "How tos" in so many different applications. (Site is Free)

www.lynda.com

This site is a an application learning site. Basically pick your application and it will teach you how it works. Everything from Microsoft word to 3-D motion graphic applications. NPCC (media team) has a membership so we can refer to it when we need to. ($250 for the year and you get access to their WHOLE LIBRARY.) Great Deal.

www.impawards.com/designers/index.html

This site is the mother load for movie poster prints. Basically it's a movie poster awards site. It lists pretty much all the graphic houses that make any and all movie posters, DVD covers, etc.. that we see everyday. Incredible stuff, great ideas, portfolios galore and you can go to the individual studio sites themselves.

www.bluefusemusic.com

Our Media Director's absolute FAVORITE royalty free music library site. He has worn this place out this past year with our series. Great web interface to select songs. You can get music from the company and pay per use, or you can pay yearly fee (around $1350) and use music as much as you want. Check out the "Undertones collection."
